

An Unforgettable School Picnic

Today, Joyce's school had a picnic. She was so excited. First, the teacher took her and her classmates to the canteen. They saw lots of foods, there were salad, candies, sandwiches, hamburgers and cakes.

Then, they took a bus to the ferry pier. When they were on the ferry, Joyce's friend Vincent asked, "Where are we going today?" Their teacher answered gently, "We are going to Lamma Island today." Joyce asked, "What are we going to do?" Her teacher continued, "We are going to have a picnic. If we have enough time, we will learn something about the wind power." On the ferry, they saw some small boats on the sea and a blue sky.

Soon, they arrived at Lamma Island. "First, we need to put the mat on the grass, then we can eat." Soon afterwards, they placed the mat on the grass as quickly as possible. Next, Joyce and her classmates applied the sun cream on their whole bodies. Meanwhile, the teacher took out the picnic basket which was filled with lots of food. Later, a bird came to eat their food because Joyce threw some cakes on the grass playfully.

All of a sudden, there were rainstorms and lightning. The teacher said, "Let's go to that wooden house." Pointing at a wooden small house, they rushed to the wooden house as fast as their legs could carry them. "Do you have any umbrellas?" the teacher asked anxiously. Vincent replied, "I have an... Oh! My umbrella was on the mat." The teacher commanded, "Vincent, go to get your umbrella!" Vincent ran out to the mat immediately. However, a dog was biting the umbrella. Therefore, he snatched the umbrella and threw it at the dog. Yet, he missed and the umbrella rolled down the hill. A wonderful idea had come to him in a flash. He used the mat instantly to cover his head and ran back to the wooden house. Finally, the teacher covered all the students and walked to the pier with the enormous mat. All of them arrived on time to catch the ferry.

After all, they were delighted and grateful to Vincent, who was totally exhausted.
