

Jack was a hero

Last week, best friends Jack and Harry were walking in the forest. They were doing a project. They were trying to take more pictures of different plants, and had already successfully collected ten photos. When they were going back to the city, they saw some smoke.

Jack, who thought that the smoke was coming from a chimney of a house, said, "I'm dying for a cup of water. "Let's get something to drink." Harry agreed and they started walking to the house. However, they were surprised when they saw the source of the smoke. It was not someone's house! It was a fire on a tree!

Jack said, "Oh, no! The fire is going to burn down the forest!" He tried to phone 999, but there was no signal. Harry was calmer than Jack. He climbed up a tree and looked around, and saw a little cottage nearby. He pulled Jack, who was still trying to get a signal, to the cottage, "Let's go to that cottage."

After a while, they arrived at the cottage. Jack banged on the door. A young woman came out and asked, "Hi, little fellows! What's the problem? Come in and tell me."

As Harry was explaining the fire, the woman suddenly took out a club. Before Harry could do anything, his vision went black. When he woke up, he was lying on a bed in a hospital. He saw Jack and asked him what had happened.

Jack said, "That woman is crazy. She wanted to burn down the whole forest, just for fun. She didn't want us to phone the fire station, so she took a club to make you faint. Then, she tried to stab me with a knife. Luckily, I knew karate, so I fought back and she fainted.

Harry asked, "How about the fire?" Jack replied, "The fire was already put out, and the woman is now in a mental hospital." Harry was relieved. He felt lucky to have Jack as his friend.
