

The Weird Dream

Ho Pak Ho 6D (11)

I had a dream yesterday. In the dream, I settled down in my cozy room. I had just finished playing my favourite computer game, and I was over the moon when I scored a record number of points. Feeling excited, I was about to switch off the computer when a colourful light shimmered on it. Suddenly, an alien knocked on the screen. I had never seen anything like it: green skin, big eyes and a friendly smile. It waved at me, and to my astonishment, I got inside the screen!

Once I was inside, I realized I was trapped! The aliens were friendly, but I couldn't find a way back to my room. They wanted to play with me, but the thought of being stuck in this strange place filled me with worry.

Feeling nervous but determined, I showed them my gaming skills, and they quickly joined in, amazed by the way we could play together. As we took challenges and raced through levels, I suddenly felt the screen start to vibrate. Just then, a portal opened, and our teamwork created a path back home. Just like that, we turned the tables on the situation.

A wave of happiness washed over me when I woke up. I had made friends from another world! I smiled, knowing that my next gaming session would always include the delightful memory of my alien friends.
